YourEncore is hosting a networking reception for retired, recently-separated and seasoned science and technology professionals who are interested in joining its Expert Network to support consulting/project engagements with its Member Companies.

YourEncore recently opened its East Coast office in Cranbury, New Jersey. Due to the flexible nature of the YourEncore business model, YourEncore's Member Company base is rapidly expanding in New Jersey, New York, and Pennsylvania. YourEncore is actively seeking additional Experts from the area to support the growing number of projects based in our region.

YourEncore is an innovation services company that taps into one of our country's most under-utilized assets: the growing number of retired and veteran scientists and engineers. YourEncore's Expert Network includes individuals from over 1000 companies and organizations across multiple industries, government agencies, and universities, and represents a broad spectrum of scientific, engineering, and product development disciplines. The company is uniquely positioned to help its Member Companies retain critical knowledge and make remarkable connections to solve challenging problems. Typical project engagements range from hands-on technical assistance, problem-solving or solution-oriented projects, from practitioner level to executive suite.

YourEncore will host a networking event for prospective talent at 6:00 p.m. Tuesday, September 29, at the Heldrich Center for Workforce Development in New Brunswick. Speakers will include YourEncore leaders, current NJ-area YourEncore Experts, representative from our NJ-area Member Companies, Neuroscience Network founder Joanne Gere, and Aaron Fichtner (Director of Research and Evaluation at the Heldrich Center for Workforce Development, Rutgers University).

The event is free, but pre-qualification is highly recommended. Experts with experience in the life sciences, food science, consumer products and aerospace sectors are invited to pre-qualify for attendance by sending a resume in Microsoft Word format to New Jersey Client Services team at nj@yourencore.com.

This event is co-sponsored by the NeuroScience Network (an initiative of the BioScience Collaborative, partially supported by the Bio 1 WIRED program).
